Wit & Wisdom: a Q&A with Nina Campbell
Recording Live for the Business of Home Podcast

In 1974, Nina Campbell established her company as both an interior design practice and a shop selling home treasures from all over the world. Today, Nina is hailed as someone who has influenced style internationally - not only through her extraordinary portfolio of interiors projects, but also with her collections of fabrics, wallpapers and accessories, which includes a 28-year collaboration with distributor Osborne & Little. Nina's designs are epitomised by luxury, practicality and a sense of wit, and integral to her collections is a colour palette that has been developed with a decorator's eye -- one that is constantly evolving so that new and existing designs work beautifully together.

Nina will join Business of Home (BOH) Contributor & Podcast Host, Dennis Scully, for an insightful one-on-one conversation to discuss her career and successes. The Q&A will be recorded live for an upcoming episode of the five-star rated BOH Podcast, where each week, Dennis explores the changes and challenges facing the interior design community through interviews with thought leaders, entrepreneurs and creatives who are shaking it up and paving the way forward. As both the doyenne of English style and a tenacious businesswoman, we can't wait to delve inside Nina's creative mind.

A reception & book signing will follow at Ammon Hickson, Suite B-240.

Ammon Hickson, Suite B-240
LES INDIENNES by Nina Campbell
Nina Campbell's collection of printed and embroidered fabrics, and wallpapers was inspired by the 17th and 18th century French vogue for textile designs originally produced in East India and traded via the Compagnie des Indes. These were given the generic name of Les Indiennes. Nina updates her iconic palette of blues, aquas and corals by adding exciting new color combinations, which pair black with emerald, red with teal and by mixing aqua with taupe and ochre. She also introduces softer romantic tones of blush pink with French grey.

Cowtan & Tout, Suite B-254

DEYA by Matthew Williamson
Matthew Williamson's collection for Osborne & Little is named after the village in the hills of the Balearic island of Mallorca near where the international designer has a home and spends several months of the year. These surroundings have inspired embroidered and printed fabrics and wallpapers which are decidedly Mediterranean in mood and coloring.
